

WHEN YOUR HUSBAND IS PASSIVE: 6 QUESTIONS TO HELP

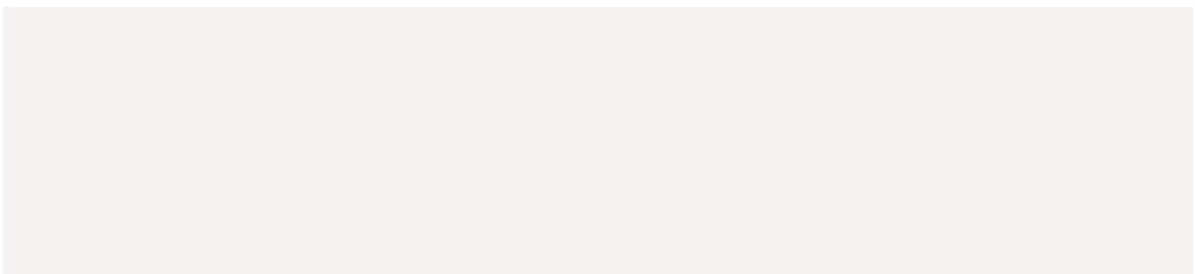

To navigate passivity in marriage, we need to look at the larger picture of our history together (and our spouse's general personality) to gauge what type of motivation we can expect from each other.

CLICK HERE FOR FULL LIST OF QUESTIONS AND THE CLASS

1. What were my relationship expectations when we were dating?

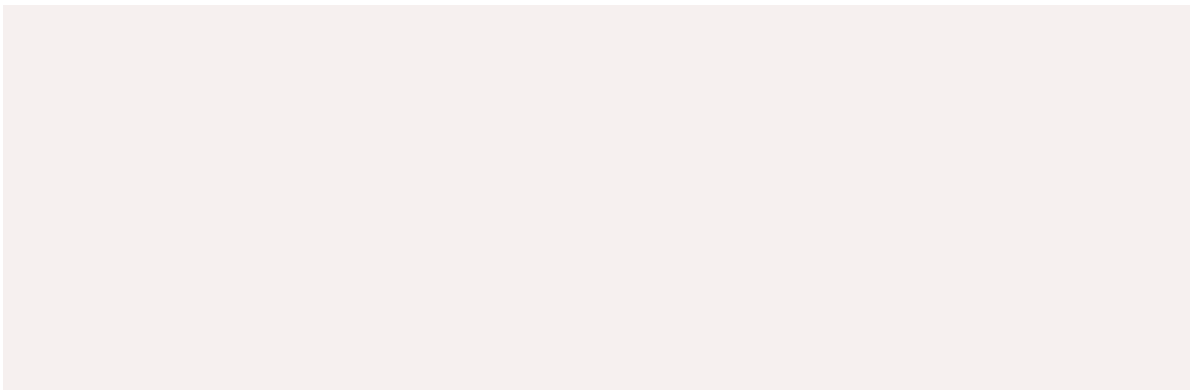

2. How honest was I in expressing my needs and desires when we were dating?

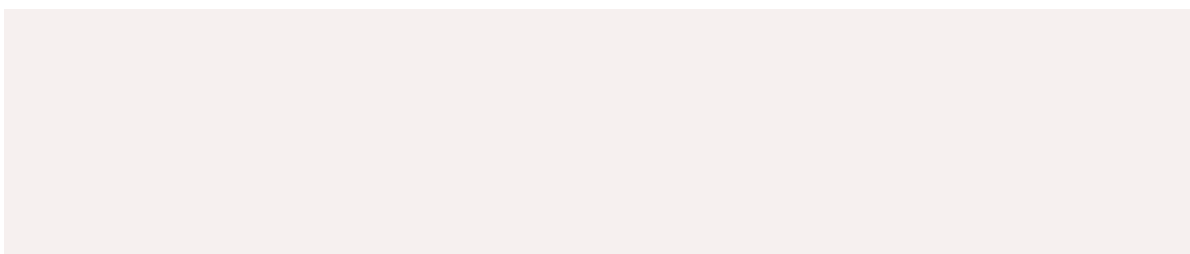

3. In what ways did I "rescue" my husband-then-boyfriend from his responsibilities when we were dating?

4. What are my relationship expectations in marriage?

5. Based on our past, how realistic are those expectations?

6. What are the 3 top things I can start doing today to create space for my husband to grow? (PS: you can't make your husband change. These questions are meant to help you take ownership of the part of marriage you control.)

here's what's next:

Passivity in marriage is one of the lessons we cover in my connection course, How To Navigate Conflict in Marriage. Deepen your connection and take your marriage to the next level >> CLICK HERE \(Use 28OFF to get 28% off\).